

This course delves into the three core dimensions of ESG: Environmental, Social, and Governance, offering a comprehensive exploration of their integration into business strategy. Participants will examine critical themes such as stakeholder engagement, risk management, and adherence to sustainability standards, with a focus on the transformative 'Systems Thinking' approach. By applying systems thinking, ESG professionals can better navigate the complexities of sustainability, understand interdependencies within systems, and develop impactful strategies that address the multifaceted challenges of aligning ESG considerations with long-term business goals.
